The International Education Site

Free guide to study abroad information, advice and opportunities for students worldwide

Website Review

This is a guide to current course vacancies in those institutions around the world who choose to advertise here. It's not a comprehensive list - the site provides some useful information and advice but you need to be aware of its limitations. Many of the featured institutions are private, although some very prestigious institutions (particularly in the UK) do choose to advertise their courses selectively.

UK students looking, say, for a private cordon bleu course in the USA or UK may find it useful. Scroll down the page and you'll be advised to click the link to www.studyoverseas.com which provides a comprehensive list of institutions. There's related advice and guidance including a free information service to send for prospectuses - and some student profiles.
